Introduction

The Preventing Sex Trafficking and Strengthening Families Act of 2014 (PL 113– 183) requires child welfare agencies to promote normalcy and well-being for children and youth in foster care. PL 113– 183 also requires child welfare agencies to implement a reasonable and prudent parent standard (RPPS), whereby permission for normal, day-to-day activities and events shifts from division staff to caregivers.

Definitions

Age or Developmentally Appropriate: Activities or items that are:

- (a) generally accepted as being suitable for children of the same chronological age or level of maturity or that are determined to be developmentally appropriate for a child, based on the development of cognitive, emotional, physical, and behavioral capacities that are typical for an age or age group; and
- (b) in the case of a specific child, activities or items that are suitable for the child based on the developmental stages attained by the child with respect to the cognitive, emotional, physical, and behavioral capacities of the child.

Caregiver: The resource parent or foster parent with whom the child or youth in DCF custody has been placed; or a designated employee of a child care facility, including residential treatment programs or independent living programs in which youth have been placed.

Normalcy: Allowing children and youth in out-of-home care to experience childhood and adolescence in ways like their peers not in foster care. This includes opportunities to participate in activities and experiences such as:

- After-school clubs and sports;
- Recreational and community activities;
- School field trips;
- Sleepovers;
- Part-time jobs or summer employment;
- Driver’s education;
- Choice in personal style and expression;
- Cultural and religious practices and expression;
- Access to cell phones, computer usage, and social media;
- Reasonable curfews; and
- Reasonable rules regarding dating and socializing with peers.

Reasonable and Prudent Parent Standard (RPPS): A standard characterized by careful and sensible parental decisions that maintain the health, safety, and best interests of a child or youth in foster care, while at the same time encouraging the emotional and developmental growth of the child, that a caregiver must use when determining whether to allow a child in foster care to participate in extracurricular, enrichment, cultural, and social activities.

Policy

Caregivers are authorized to provide or withhold permission without prior approval of the social worker or other division staff to allow a child or youth in their care to participate in normal childhood activities and events based on the reasonable and prudent parent standard (RPPS). Caregivers may approve or disapprove activities independently without the division’s explicit permission unless the activity:

- (1) conflicts with a safety plan, treatment plan, case plan, or court order; OR
- (2) last more than 72 hours.

Consultation with DCF-FSD staff is encouraged for decisions where the parent’s and caregiver’s opinions differ. See Appendix I for additional information and guidance.

Appendix I: Reasonable and Prudent Parent Standard (RPPS) Caregiver Guidelines
